It Boss Not Specify Whether It Shall Be a rince, Underground, or Elevated Railway-Mayor Gleason Scores a Victory in the Assembly with the Votes of the Brooklyn Democratic Members,

ALBANY, Feb. 26.-Like hungry woives who have tasted blood, the Assemblymen fought this morning to see which one of them would get the Fifth Avenue Railroad bill in his committee. According to the rules. copy to be given to the printer as the official copy and the other copy to be filed in the Assembly library for reference. The reporters get the bills and knowledge of their contents from the bills in the Assembly libarry. Yesterday afternoon Mr. Jacob Rice, who some distance from New York city.

went to Speaker Bush at his house and asked him if he would take a bill there and have the Clerk enter it as regularly introduced. The Speaker took the bill, and its inion was not known until it was referred to the Committee on Cities this morning. It then turned out to be a bill for the building of a railroad on Fifth avenue, below Fifty-ninth street. It is not specified in the bill what kind of road it shall be, whether surface, underground, or elevated.

This was a fat plum, almost as good as the huckleberry road bill and the East River bridge bill. As soon as it was known what it was the Assemblymen pounced upon it. Mr. O'Connor of Brooklyn wanted it sent to the Railroad Committee.in order that some friends of his might control it. Sir Percival Webster. Chairman of the Committee on Cities, said that Mr. O'Connor's suggestion was preposter-that Mr. O'Connor's suggestion was preposterous, and that the Committee on Cities was the proper place for the bill.

Mr. Rice said that the bill came from No. 1 espitalists, and that the bill came from No. 1. This increased the easerness of the Assemblymen. Mr. O'Connor said that the former bills to build a street car road on Fifth avenue had gone to the Committee on Railroads, and that this bill should go there. It was put to a vote, and the Committee on Cities won.

There were not enough Senators present to pass important bills on which there was a difference of opinion. Many of the Senators take Fridsy off as well as Saturday and Sunday. The Benate passed the Gianders bill, the bill to protect livery stable keepers, and the bill regulating the rates of fare on the College Point ferry.

The Benate reported the Martin constitu-

Point ferry.

The Senate reported the Martin constitutional amendment to turn the Superior and Common Pleas courts of New York city into see Circuit Court, and the Connelly till to provide for an annual appropriation of $50,000 to the Museum of Natural History in New York city, provided the museum keeps open Eunday afternoons and two evenings in the week.

The Assembly reported the Plunkitt bill to make complaints.

The Hon. Patrick Gleason, Mayor of Long Island City, was the object of debate in the Assembly this morning. There was a combination in Mr. Gleason's district last fall by which a ite-publican Assemblyman was elected in that Democratio district through the aid of Mr. Gleason and his friends, who thought that the Assembly would be Republican and wanted protection. It so happened that the Legislature was Demogratic, and preparations were making to shear Mr. Gleason of the powers of his office until he came up to Aloany and made peace. Everybody was evidently not included in the peace making, for a lively faction of the Assembly waged was on the bill to give Mr. Gleason $175,000 to build more schoolhouses in Long Island City. Mr. Farquiar offered an amendment that the power to spend this money should be vested in the Common Council and not in the Mayor.

Mr. Weeks, Assemblyman from Long Island City, who became famous in the Legislature for writing a biographical sketch of himself as a "Night of Pythias, opposed the amendment and defended Mr. Gleason. He said that the people of Long Island City were satisfied with his administration.

"The man in whose hands you propose to place this fund," said Mr. Bush, "is the biggest people of Long Island City were satisfied with his administration.

"The man in whose hands you propose to place this fund," said Mr. Bush, "Is the biggest pirate who ever presided over a municipality. This man has already made an arrangement to support the Republican candidate for President next fall, in return for Republican support for his bills in this Legislature. In 1884 the Trouse relied on him to fix the returns for Long Island City for Blaine."

"The relations of Mr. Gleanon with the Republican party," said Mr. Farquhar, "were shown last fall, when he elected the Republican Assemblyman who introduces this bill. Mayor Gleason will admit that he made a deal with the Republicans last fall."

I thought this was a debate shout schools," said Mr. Husted, "but it seems that the next Presidential election depends upon this bill. The gentleman lias made a reference to the election of 1884. Mr. Blaine was elected in 1864."

"Not much," interjected Mr. Sulzer.

"Not much," interjected Mr. Sulzer.
"Nr. Biaino was elected in 1884," repeated Gen. Husted, "and he was counted out in New Lots and Long Island City.
"It is strange that you rec'incoate by passing this bill now." said Mr. Ryan.
Mr. O'Dair said that he was in favor of the bill.

ing this bill now," said Mr. Ryan.

Mr. O'Dair said that he was in favor of the bill.

"The remarks of the successor to Mr. Blumenthal have convinced me," said Mr. Stranahan, when he voted for the bill.

Mr. O'Dair is the Assemblyman who was elected from the Twenty-second New York district with a Republican nomination, heating Mr. Elumenthal, the opnosing candidate, and then joined Tammany Hall. The Republicans have made an agreement not to refer to him at any time as "the gentleman from New York." which is the customary way for one Assemblyman to sneak of another, but to speak of him as "the successor to Mr. Blumenthal." As the Democrate do not stand up for him, he is having a pretty uncomfortable time of it.

"Mayor Gleason has never done anything that would reflect on his honesty," said Mr. Sulzer. "He would the afraid to." said Col. Webster.

"He would the afraid to." said Col. Webster.

"Mayor Gleason would knock any man down who said that to him."

The bill was passed as Mayor Gleason wanted it, the Brooklyn Democrate voting with the Republicans, as has been the case several times recently.

Speaker Bush's health has not been good for several days, and he has presided only part of the time. This morning Mr. Waiter G. Byrne of New York was in the chair.

Gov. Plower has taken no cattou on the East River Bridge bill reached him this morning. He has ten days in which to act on it.

MER WELL-10-DO RELATIVES AMIZED

When They Learned that Emma Renault Mad Seen Keeping a Disorderly House.

Emma Renault, a young woman in fashionaeral Bessions before Judge Fitzgerald yesterguilty in her behalf of two indictments, one charging her with keeping a disorderly house at 6 Delancey street, and the other with harboring for an improper purpose Emma Heck. The indictments were found upon the com-blaints of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children. President Gerry told the Cruelty to Children. President Gerry told the Court that he did not think it was a case for severity under his law. Emma Heck was a girl of previously bad character, and went to the defendant's house in ill health. The defendant auraed her and otherwise treated her in a proper way, and Emma Heck was not injured while there. Besides, the defendant had now abandoned the keeping of a house of ill fame, and was living respectably with her relatives.

This is an extraordinary case." said Scantor Rosech. This young woman is connected with a family that stands very high among the Germans of this city. Her relatives were utterly amazed when they found out the character of the business in which she had been engaged. She has been living for some time an absolutely dual existence, appearing to her relatives to be living in a reputable manner. She is now itying with her relatives in West Eighty-fourth street, and is truly repentant."

Judge Fitzgerald fined her $500. Senator Rosech paid the fine and took the woman from the court room.

HON, E. T. BURBOWES ARRESTED. of a Rivel Through the Malls. Reief Reviews of Important and Interesting

PORTLAND, Me., Feb. 20,-The Hon, E. T. Burrewes of this city was arrested to-day by United States Marshal Saunders on charges of conspiracy to ruin a rival business corporation, forgery, an attempt to break up the family of an employee of a competitor, and other serious offences. Mr. Eurrowes is at the head of the biggest window screen and weather strip manufactory in the United States, and his income is placed at $50,000 a year. Nearly a year ago a former employee of his patented a screen and a process for making it and attempted to interest capitalists in the matter. Finally, after much opposition, in which, it was alleged, Mr. Burrowes took an active part, a corporation was formed under the name of the Portland Screen Company, with many prominent Portland citizens interested. C. L Cummings was the chief clerk of the new corporation, and soon after it opened for business he received several letters, purporting to be signed by one William P. Washburn. in which the latter wanted to arrange with Cummings to send him secretly the names of all persons who entered into contracts with the new company. He claimed that he had invented a contrivance which augmented the screens, but did not interfere with the sale of the latter. He wanted to supply the customers of the Portland Screen Company with his own invention, and offered to pay liberally lor every name sent. These letters are said by experts to be in the handwriting of Mr. Burrowes. The attempt was to secure the order list and cut to be in the handwriting of Mr. Burrows. In attempt was to secure the order list and cut rates.

Soon after the organization of the rival company it emileyed as a stravelling salesman a man named A. W. Perse who was "on the road" most of the time. Mrs. Pease soon began to receive anonymous letters saying that her husband was unfauthful to her. Letter after letter came. The husband was confronted with them and transferred to the business office. The letters then ceased. He was sent out again, and they once more began to come and mally he had to give up traveiling. One of the charges against Mr. Burrows is that he has assumed the name of W. P. Washburn. It appears that a W. P. Washburn. It appears that a W. P. Washburn. It appears that a W. P. Washburn and affidavit that he had never given permission to anyone to use his name that he has never been engaged in business, as an agent or otherwise, for any concern, and that he does not know E. T. Burrowes. Mr. Burrowes went to the printing office of George D. Loring and ordered 200 letter heads reading: "William P. Washburn, Ag't for Cooper's latent Weather Strips, Post Office address, Station A. Boston, Mass."

The original copy, said to be in Mr. Burrowes's handwriting, has been obtained from the printer, and will be used in substantiating the charge of forgery. Office authorities at the various cities to which the Washburn letters were sent had received orders to return all of them to a given box in the Portland office, which proved to be Surrowes's private box.

various cities to which the Washburn letters were sent had received orders to return all of them to a given box in the Portland office, which proved to be Burrowes s private box.

Air. Burrowes for years has been one of the most distinguished men of Manne. He hashad a high social, political, church, and business position. After Gen. Neal Dow he is the best known man in the Prohibition party of the State. He was once a candidate for Governor. He has been a candidate for Mayor. He is one of the leaders of the National Prohibition party. He is the most extensive manufacturer in Portland. His big manufactory on Tree streef covers several acres. He has always had the reputation of being a thoroughly honest man.

FOR GOVERNOR OF WEST VIRGINIA. Congressman Wilson May Make the Ruce

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.-" Keep your eye on West Virginia." is a popular expression at the Capitol since the announcement was made that Representative William I. Wilson may become the Gubernatorial candidate of the Democrats in that State. It has long been the Intention of Stephen B. Elkins to test his popularity in West Virginia by running for Governor, the Republicans say, and since his appointment to the cabinet his desire in that direction has increased. It is understood that the President cordially approves of the programme, and will do all in his power to assist Mr. Elkins in his canvass. The selection of Kepresontative Witsen to compete with the Secretary of War will be generally acceptable to Demogratis in all parts of the State. He is regarded as one of the ablest members in the present House, and he shares with Senator Faulkner the honor of the leadership of the Domogratic party in his State. Mr. Wison, in referring to the situation in West Virginia, said to-day that the contest between Senator Faulkner and ex-Senator Camden for a seat in the Senate will not interfere with the State ticket. On the contrary, it will probably stimulate the jarry to put forth its full strongth against the Republican nominee. Although Mr. Wilson is not seeking the nomination for Governor, it is understook that he will not he state to make the race against Secretary Elkins or any one else the Republicans may nominate. He and the other West Virginia Congressmen do not concede the claims made by Republicans that the State is in danger of drifting from its Demogratic moorings in the next fresidential election.

GIFING PLAIT A CLEAR ROAD. Miller Man Promise to Stand Out

Way This Spring. The Republican State Committee will meet in the Fifth Avenue Hotel at noon on Monday. The indications are that the committee will name Albany as the place for the State Convention, and fix the date about May 4. A peculiarly interesting story was circulated by the anti-Platt people last night.

"We do not propose to make a fight for delegates to the next State Convention." said an anti-Platt man. "We will do everything possible in our counties to retain our ascendpossible in our counties to retain our ascend-ancy. But if Mr. Platt and his friends think it advisable to enter our strongholds and cause trouble we will let them have their own way, and we will afterward let them be responsible for the result. We will not under any circumtances interpose any objection to the Platt stances interpose any objection to the Platt programme."

This was considered sensible by Mr. Platt's friends. "In the first place," said one of Mr. Platt's friends, "there is no real opposition to Mr. Platt. The anti-Platt neople have been klekers for a dozen years. It is very kind of them to say that they will not oppose the wishes of the majority. They have adopted this milk-and-water programme knowing that they are already beaten. For three years and more Warner Miller and his friends have not contributed a vote toward the success of the Republican party in the State. They are in a hopeless minority, and they now say that the Platt people must assume all responsibility for the nuture. That is exactly what the Platt people have been doing for half a dozen years. They are Republicans. They have never cut the ticket. They have fought the lattices of the party and stood by and seen the anti-Platt people play into the hands of the Democrats."

Oneida County's Ant'-Hill Committeeman, Uttea, Feb. 26.-The Hon. T. E. Minney, the Onelda county committeeman appointed at the Albany meeting of the Cleveland Committee of Fifty, left the city to-day to attend a meeting of the committee at Ellery Anderson's office in of the committee at Ellery Anderson's olice in New York to-morrow morning. Before he left Mr. Kinney said that the Syracuse State Con-vention would surely be held, and that, in his ominion, the Hill-Cleveland fight would not di-yide the party beyond the point of reconcilla-tion. "At any rate." he added, "the Demo-cratic party can better affect to lose with Cleveland than win with Hill."

Thinks Patterson Wants Too Much,

A majority of the members of the Republican County Committee, it was learned last night, are now in revolt against Joeob M. Patterson, Chairman of the Executive Committee. Mr. Patterson will have consultations with Senator Hiscock to-day over the Custom House, held by Thomas A. Briggs. The kied-ers say they have information that Mr. Patter-son intends, if possible, to have the contract distributed among his friends, without regard to the wishes of the organization.

Last of the Press Gag Law.

The indistment charging Wm. M. Laffan. ublisher of THE SUN, with printing accounts of the executions at Hing Sing in July last was dismissed yesterday by Judge Martine in the General Kessions. District Attorney Nicoll endorsed on the indictment:

"The statute upon which this indictment was founded having been repealed without reservation or saving clauses, the prosecution necessarily fails."

Lieut.-Gov. William F. Sheehan and Chairnan Edward Murpily of the Democratic State committee are in town.

A slight cold kept Mayor Grant from his office yesterday, but he was able to be out in the evening.
Richard Croker was two ill last night to see callers. He is suffering from a severe cold.

"A Monograph on Privately Illustrated Books: a Pien for Bibliomania." by Daniel M. Trodwell, is published by the author at Flatrush, Long Island. This is a work of remarkable detail. It contains an account as complete, we should think, as anybody could ever privately Illustrated in this country. Much of its information is curious and interesting, and much of it, so far as we are aware, is now afforded for the first time. Private illustrating is of recent origin. Some races of what Mr. Tredwell calls the mania were remarked in England so far back as the last half of the eighteenth century, but they were very slight. In this country the greater part of this work has been accomplished in thirty years ago, and forty-five years ago, Mr. Tredwell thinks it is safe to say, no American amateurs were to be found illustrating their own books. In earlier times prints were col-hope to procure of the books which have been lected for their own sake, and they and the books had places apart. An idea of the extent to which private illustrating may run is afforded by Mr. Tredwell in a few details from his own experience. Thirty years ago he began the illustration of Dr. Henry R. Stiles's" History of the City of Brook yn," and this work is not yet concluded. He has added to Dr. Stiles's original work 2,300 pages, mostly portraits and prints of historic landmarks. The original three volumes have been extended to nine, and the cost so far lins been something like $2,000. But it is not to be understood that the illustrator's whole attention has been given to this particular work. In the thirty years he has illustrated sixty different works, or about 120 volumes, and he has upward of 300 books in his library which have "more or less undergone this process of mutilation." Mr. Tredwell describes how the scope of a contemplated illustration may grow under the temptations afforded in the print seller's shops. Starting out to buy a portrait of Washington Irving to paste in a skotch of the life of that author, he found himself presently with twenty-seven engraved portraits repre senting Irving at different periods of his life from 16 to CO. Still an interval and he was pos sessed of portraits of Irving's relations and lit erary friends, cuts of the Irving birtholace and library, and so on, seventy-five all told, which had been obtained at a total expense of $25 Then came the work of the injuyer-the professional gentleman who makes prints fit into books as though they had grown there-still inlaying is described in careful detail by Mr. Tredwell, and he specifies four Americans whose skill at this work surpasses that of the best English and French inlavers.

John Allan, one of the most remarkable of book collectors, was the first American illustrator. His collection first became known to the world after his death in 1804, when it was entalogued for sale by Bungs, Merwin & Co. This great sale, which was the first of its kind in America, appears to have established standards not only here but abroad, from which to estimate the value of literary and aristle rarities, and the priced catalogue of John Allan's sale has been consulted as the criteion of value for nearly thirty years. John Allan was a Scotchman, the son of an Ayrshire farmer. He came to this city about the beginning of the century and accumulated a forune. He lived in Vandewater street, where he died at the age of 87 of shock, resulting from fright received during the draft riots of 1863. In his library, which included 7,500 volumes, we may mention as conspicuous among the kind of works particularly considered in Mr. Tredwell's monograph Washington Irving's "Knickerbocker History of New York," into which Mr. Allan had juserted 275 prints and etchings. The illustrations made the 'History" an encyclopædia of Knickerbocker art. This work brought $1,250 at the auction sale.

Among the many New York illustrators who and whom Mr. Tredwell has distinguished in V. Arnold, Mr. Augustin Daly, and Mr. A. M. amount of private illustration, and his collecion is among the most colebrated of the city. His most remarkable work. Mr. Tredwell tells us, had for its foundation Joseph N. Ireland's Recollections of the New York Stage." In 1882 Mr. Arnold had extended Mr. Ireland's work to twenty volumes, had expended upon it upward of $0.000, and had supplied it with 5.500 illustrations of persons and scenes rang-ing over the period from 1750 to 1850. Among Mr. Daly's many works of illustration we may mention the extension to fifty volumes of the These volumes contain original drawings by Raphael, Blake. Bewick, and others, as well as etchings by Rembrandt, Dürer, Hogarth, and nany more, and they are also supplied with thousands of the choicest engravings. This example of private illustration is well designated by Mr. Tredwell as a mammeth work. We may mention also as belonging to Mr. Daly a copy of Thackeray's "Letters to Ann Burchfield," in which the printed pages are faced with the complete originals of these letters, and which ontains also a number of Thackeray's unpubished letters and original drawings. Mr. l'aimer's "History of the Union Square Theatre Under A. M. Palmer's Management" includes twelve bulky folio volumes, and con tains upward of 600 autobiographies of actors and actresses and 3,500 portraits, play bills, and other illustrative matters. Mr. Palmer owns also many privately illustrated editions of Shakespeare and of the early English authors, several of them fine examples.

But perhaps the most remarkable achieve nent in the way of private illustration noted by Mr. Tredwell is to be credited to Mr. D. MeN. Stauffer of this city. Mr. Stauffer inserted upward of 8,000 illustrations into Westott's "A History of Philadelphia." all of the inlaying being the work of his own hands. The original history, ten by thirteen inches in size and containing 2,580 pages of text, is extended into fifty felio volumes, the cost of which is estimated by Mr. Tredwell at $80,000. Of all llustrated local histories, it is probable that here is none to compare with this.

"Warning to the People: an Important Ere and Jerusalem Crickets," is a pamphlet of prophecy by T. J. Williamson, published by himself in this city. It is rather more incomprehensible than the prophecies of Lieut Totten, the spirtual Wiggins of Yale University, which means that its lunney is of the last and astogether uninteresting stage. The disturting and imperfect remark, "Chilian spies among us! You better read this book!" stamped in red letters on the cover, has no bearing whatever upon anything inside. We fear, alast it is a mere conscienceless device to sell the pamphilet. We know not, however, what device it is possible for the author to employ to persuade people to read the hopeless nonsense here provided. The "Handbook of Astronomy" for 1892. published by the Department of Astronomy of the Brooklyn Institute, is an exceedingly convenient reference book for amateur sky gazers. Besides a daily calendar, containing an account of planetary configurations, it has special tables of the planets, lists of meteor showers, tables of variable stars, occultations, and a large variety of useful knowledge about the starry hosts such as everybody occasionally wishes to turn to, but which cannot elsewhere readily be found. No artist of recent times has excited the interest of the public more powerfully than Jules Bastien-Lepage, and a sumptuous volume (Maemillan & Co.) in which his memoir by Andre Theoriet is set out with the utmost perfection of paper and printing, along with an essay upon his merits as an artist by George Clausen, a discussion of modern realism in painting by Walter Sickert, and a study of Marie Bashkirtseff by Mathilde Blind. Of these essays it is enough to say that they are well worthy of their subjects. The value of !

the volume is enhanced by fifteen admirable

illustrations. A very learned and discoursive work, pub lished some fifteen years ago by Richard Payne Knight, on "The Symbolical Language of Ancient Art and Mythology," appears in a new edition with an introduction, notes in English, and a complete index by Dr. Alexander Wilder (J. W. Bouton). Dr. Wilder's intro-duction and index are of great value, and his translation of the notes into English adds nuch to the popular interest of the volume. It is printed in very handsome style.

A CHASE FOR A MADMAN.

Max Karlinger Insane in Broadway-Three Women Craxy in the Street.

Max Karlinger, a cigarmaker of 120 De ancey street, became Insune yesterday just before noon in Broadway, near Cedar street. Roundsman Campbell of the Broadway squad saw him toss his arms about his head and start up Broadway, biting and tearing with his teeth a Hebrew prayer book.

The officer gave chase and many pedestri-ans joined in. At Cortlandt street was a blockade of trucks and horse cars. Dodging be tween the horses and jumping across the front platform of one of the cars, the insane man dashed down Cortlandt street, closely followed by the officer and a crowd that rapidly inereased. At the corner of Church street Policeman Lunny joined in the classe. Karlinger fell and twisted his ankle, and a Vesey street Lunny overtook him. He fought nard, and it was with great difficulty that he was taken to the station house, where a strait jacket was put on him. When the ambulance jacket was put on him. When the ambulance arrived it required five men to take Karlinger from the cell, and another struggle followed, which ended only when the doctors had securely bound him with cords. Ho was taken directly to Bellevue Hospital.

Three Insane women were brought before Justice Duffy at the Tombs Court yesterday morning. Ellen Duld, who is 40 years old, made desperate attempts to commit suicide by jumping Lato the river at Harrison and Wost streets very early yesterday morning.

Ellen McCarthy, a pretty octoroon, 23 years old, living in Brooklyn, was found at the foot of Broad street about midnight of Thursday standing under an electric light with most of her cicking lying on the ground near her. She was taking off her shoes when an officer arrested her. Let me alone, she protested. "I want to jump into the bay, and so I took my clothes off. My brother is at the bottom of the bay hunting clams, and I want to go and find him."

A poorly dressed woman ran un and down

A poorly dressed woman ran up and down thind him."

A poorly dressed woman ran up and down Whitehall street on Thursday evening making strange gestures and muttering incoherently. She would run a short distance, then stop and jump up in the air, reaching upward with her arms as if trying to catch something above her head. When arrested she explained that she was trying to eatch some meteors for supper. "It's rather late in the season for them," she said, "but I saw several." She gave her name as Hannah Slonne.

The three women were sent to Bellevue Hospital for examination as to their sanity. The three women were sent to Bellevue Hospital for examination as to their sanity.

A Saloon Wrecked With Dynamite. PERU. Ind., Feb. 26.-Several years ago Stedgehammer" King, a temperance revival ist, held succesful meetings in the southern part of this county. Among the effects of his work was the closing of the two saloons in North Grove. The town remained without a saloon until a few months ago, when Jacob Barnhart, proprietor of one of the tormer saloons, started another in spite of the vigorous protests of the people. This morning before daylight the saloon building was blown to pieces with a dynamite bonn. The barkceper, Phillip Graf, was sleeping in the back room of the saloon, but escaped unburt.

Hection Inspectors Arrested.

UTICA, N. Y., Feb. 26 .- This morning three inspectors of election from the Fifth Ward were arrested, charged with permitting illegal registration at the last election. They gave ball in $1,000 each to appear before the Grand Jury. Charles Prignitz and John Foley were held in $500 ball for registering lilegally. Warrants have been issued for several other men on the same charge.

Viscount Palmerston, K. G. By the MARQUIS OF LORNE, K.T. With Photogravure Portrait. Crown Svo, Cloth, $1 00. (A new Volume in "The Queen's Prime Ministers Series").

Lord Lorne has enriched this interesting onograph with extracts from a very imporant series of unpublished letters from the pen of Lord Palmerston, which cast a welcome side-light on many phases of a long and Illustrious career spent in the public service.

Roweny in Boston. A Novel. By MARIA LOUISE Poor, Author of "Dally," etc. Post Svo. Cloth, Ornamental, $1.25.

A young country girl - hexperienced, but ambitious, and endowed with no little natural ability-goes to Boston for the purpose of studying art. The account of her introduction to certain phases of Boston "culture," of her experiences of Browning clubs, societies for psychical research, and spiritual diums," and of her own mistakes and triumphs, is related in a most attractive manner. The story is romantic, but not improbable, and the humor with which it is enlivened is notther obtrusive nor overdrawn.

That Angelic Woman. A Novel. By JAMES M. LUDLOW, Author of "A King of Tyre," "The Captain of the Janizaries," etc. 16mo. Cloth, Ornamental, $1.00.

We have here the story of a young New York millionaire, unable to decide what to do with either his mozer or his time, until he learns from "that angelia woman" how to dispose of both. The contrast between the woman perfeet only in physical beauty and the woman endowed with noble moral and intellectual faculties is most happily drawn, and is really the leading motive in the story.
